

EDXEDNYC 2015

JUNE 4, 2015

Hudson High School of Learning Technologies opens its doors to New York City educators for the first EDXEDNYC Conference on June 4, 2015. The mission of the EDXEDNYC 2015 Conference is to build best practices, network with other innovative thinkers within New York City and to continue conversations around student engagement and inquiry. This conference is for educators by educators, with a focus on fostering discussion, questioning, reflective leadership and design-thinking within our schools.

EDXEDNYC CONVERSATIONS

The EDXEDNYC 2015 Conference seeks to provide a forum for conversation, networking and design-thinking for New York City educators. This conference is for educators by educators, with a focus on student engagement, inquiry, blended-learning, project-based learning, travel, multiple-access points, elective programming, restorative justice, reflective leadership and design-thinking within our schools. Sessions will be less presentation and more conversation, so we can learn from our vast and collective experiences.

EDXEDNYC SPONSORSHIP

EDXEDNYC 2015 is accepting sponsors for our June 4, 2015 event. Companies in the education section can host tables at our event. Promotional item donations can be made for presenter and guests. Please fill out our sponsor form and specify your level of sponsorship.

See www.edxednyc.com for details.

EDXEDNYC PROPOSALS

The EDXEDNYC 2015 Conference is seeking conversation proposals! Have an idea? Want to host a discussion with other educators? Currently, we're covering student engagement, inquiry, blended-learning, project-based learning, student travel, multiple-access points, elective programming, restorative justice, reflective leadership and design-thinking within our schools. We'd love to hear your ideas! Submit a proposal today! Sessions are less presentation and more conversation. See www.edxednyc.com for details.

EDXEDNYC ATTEND

The EDXEDNYC 2015 Conference is free to attend and a limited amount of tickets are available now. We welcome New York City educators to share in our open conversations.

June 4, 2015 is a PD day for NYC Public School staff, and this conference is a professional learning opportunity.
